

2 DEAD, 1 DYING IN SURREY HIT BY A TROLLEY

Tragic End to the Storch Family's Outing at Coney Island.

Yesterday afternoon Joseph Storch, of No. 60 Broadway, Brooklyn, drove out to Coney Island with his family. He had just bought a new surrey and it was the first trip in it. With him was his wife, Fanny; his children, Etta, thirteen-months-old; Sadie, eleven years old; Isidor, thirteen years and a niece, Miss Lena Storch. The party had a pleasant day at the island and started to return shortly before dark.

At Bedford avenue and Malbone street the Nostrand avenue cars cross. There are no street lights at this crossing and a high fence obscures the approaching trolleys from the sight of passers-by until they are directly in the path of the wheels. It was very dark when the surrey with the Storchs reached the crossing. On account of the slight rain the curtains were tightly drawn and buttoned along the sides. In the front seat were Mr. Storch and his son, on the rear seat Mrs. Storch and the baby and Lena. The girl Sadie sat on the door of the vehicle.

A car which was packed with returning merry-makers, swung around and into the crossing in a flash. With the impact of a torpedo it struck the wagonload of helpless humanity. So sudden was the crash that there was no time for a single cry from the victims. The trolley struck the surrey into a hundred fragments and scattered the occupants like chaff.

Though partly stopped, the car sped on. Mrs. Storch lay in the road, and fell upon the tracks. As she saw her car lurch over her she made one last desperate effort to thrust her little baby as far from her as she could. The next second she was ground to pieces. The baby, had it been thrust out, would have been killed.

Mr. Storch was thrown forty feet away. He was picked up unconscious and badly hurt. He was taken to the hospital where he died. The girl Sadie and her brother were hurled aside. They, too, were unconscious and bleeding from a dozen bruises and cuts.

The moment the trolleyman, Henry Fay, felt the shock he put on the air brakes. Mr. Storch was not found until Sadie had been revived. She asked for her father and a nurse was made. He was found senseless behind a clump of bushes where he had been thrown. A trolleyman was called and the bodies of Mrs. Storch and her dying baby were taken from beneath the car. At the hospital it was found that Miss Lena Storch was internally injured and may not recover. The children were also badly cut and bruised.

When he realized the extent of his misadventure, Mr. Storch's grief became frantic with grief. He was removed to his home under the care of a physician.

CASTELLANE WINS IN FRENCH ELECTION.

PARIS, May 7.—The election results today show increasing Government gains. The Ministry of the Interior gives the gains at 33 and the losses at 1, or a net gain of 34 seats. The effect of this is to give the "Black" or groups the governing majority in the Chamber of Deputies, 243 votes against a total of 146 for the opposition groups. The Government left, therefore, appears to be assured of a majority of about 100. There remain over 150 districts in which second ballots will be necessary.

Among the prominent men elected are former Foreign Minister Delcasse, former Premier Ribot, War Minister Etienne, Minister of Marine Thomson, former Minister of the Interior Dubief, Count Boni de Castellane, the Marquis de Dion, Minister of Public Works Barthou, Minister of Agriculture Rural, Jean Leon Jaures, the Socialist leader, Baudry d'Asson, Premier Sarrien and Paul Deschanel, former President of the Chamber of Deputies.

SHOCKED ON LAMP-POLE.

Carl E. May Instantly Killed by Touching Live Wire.

Carl E. May touched a live wire while cleaning an electric lamp on a twenty-foot pole at Ocean Parkway and Avenue D, Brooklyn, today, and was instantly electrocuted. His body dropped to the ground.

A doctor who was called from the Kings County Hospital said that while no mark of the electrical contact was visible on May's body, it was evident that the shock and the fall from the pole had killed him.

Chess Player's Sudden Death.

ST. LOUIS, May 7.—Max Judd, of national reputation as a chess player, died suddenly in his room at the Monticello hotel today. Death was due to an aneurysm.

PITCHER'S WIFE HURT IN AUTO SMASH-UP

Mrs. Christy Mathewson.

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, with his wife, John T. Brush, owner of the National League Baseball Club, and the wife of "Christy" Mathewson, the pitcher, came back to town today from Newburg, where the Giants played an exhibition game yesterday and near where the four were thrown from Brush's automobile.

Mrs. McGraw and Mrs. Mathewson were severely scratched on their faces and hands, and each sustained a number of painful bruises. Brush was not injured and McGraw got a few scratches.

After the game the party had dinner in Newburg and it was dark when they started in a touring car for New York, with John Mitchell, an experienced chauffeur, at the wheel.

On the road they saw the tail light of another automobile and Mitchell slackened speed until his machine was not going more than fifteen miles an hour. As they approached, the motor in front turned to the side as if to let the other pass.

Just as Mitchell put on more power and started his machine ahead, the car in front suddenly swerved back into the road. To avoid a collision Mitchell quickly turned his automobile off the road and it ran plump into a tree.

Brush, who was sitting on the front seat with the driver, was hurled fifteen feet, but fell on a grassy knoll, uninjured. Mitchell was thrown over the steering wheel and badly bruised.

McGraw was sitting with Mrs. McGraw and Mrs. Mathewson on the rear seat, and all were thrown out. The car ahead stopped, and when it was found that the Brush car was wholly disabled, took the injured back to the hotel at Newburg.

"It was a very narrow escape," Manager McGraw said today. "There was only one thing for me to do, and that was to take the tree. Otherwise we would have crashed into the car ahead of us, and that contained five persons, all of whom might have been seriously injured."

"When we were hurled out I thought surely the women folks would be badly hurt, but when we got together and counted noses we rejoiced that none was really much hurt."

had gone there to hear Magistrate Wahle's decision in a case against him, alleging misbehavior. In having furnished false information to a newspaper in connection with the Tillinghast jury-box scandal. Unknown to Julian, the Magistrate had been hearing evidence offered by former Assistant District Attorney John H. Berlin to support the charge of grand larceny.

Julian gave bond of $1,000 and was released. No decision has been reached in the misdemeanor complaint, and pending its settlement his old bond of $20 was continued in that case. Julian said the allegation regarding the check transaction had been trumped up to discredit the effort of the charges he had made against officials of the street railway company.

INSURANCE FRAUDS AT LAST BEFORE GRAND JURY

Special Body Sworn In by Justice Scott to Investigate Yellow Dog Funds and Other Irregularities.

The Special Grand Jury which was sworn in today with Henry L. Joyce as foreman tackled the iniquities of the insurance companies this afternoon by delving into the secrets of the supply department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

In his opening address to the new Grand Jury District Attorney Jerome said that Andrew Fields, who had been the head of this department for the Mutual, had been served and had promised to appear as a witness and tell all he knew. Fields is ill at his home at Ocean Grove, but expects to be able to come to the city in a few days.

Carpenter the First Witness.

The first witness called to-day was William Carpenter, who was manager of the House of Mirth at Albany, which was maintained through the supply department of the Mutual Life. Carpenter was Fields's right-hand man, and is supposed to know what legislators were entertained, how they were entertained and for what purpose.

Other witnesses were Wallace Babcock, who made out all orders for the supply department, and Harry Epps, the department's head bookkeeper.

Henry L. Joyce, the foreman, is a transportation manager at No. 17 Battery place and a trustee of the West Side Savings Bank. He lives at No. 131 West Sixty-first street.

Forty-one men answered the call for the special jury, and as only twenty-three are necessary, eighteen were excused.

It might have been an accident which sent a summons to George H. Eldridge to act as a special grand juror to investigate insurance iniquities.

Mr. Eldridge is a vice-president of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, and was recently indicted with the president of the company. He was in court, and did not ask to be excused, but Justice Scott informed him that he believed the Grand Jury could worry along without him. Another man excused was John P. Faure, former charity commissioner.

There were fully twenty attorneys in court representing the various insurance companies. Among them were John B. Stansfield, George M. Pinney, George Gordon Battle and Forbes J. Hennessey.

The Special Grand Jury will meet each afternoon at 2 o'clock on the adjournment of the regular Grand Jury. Justice Scott outlined its duties and furnished copies of the statute under which it is to operate. He said that while an accused person did not have the right to appear before the Grand Jury, the Grand Jury could call such a person if it believed it could learn additional facts by so doing.

Mr. Joyce's associates on the special Grand Jury are: Charles I. Berg, architect, No. 51 Fifth avenue; Albert Behring, insurance broker, No. 122 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street; Louis

Goldsmith, silk importer, No. 23 Greene street; Philip Hase, book dealer, No. 36 Greenwich street; Ezekiel Williams, retired, No. 80 West Twenty-second street; Samuel Joseph, retired, No. 111 Lenox avenue; William S. Lator, real-estate dealer, No. 140 Nassau street; Isaac Strauss, dealer in corns, No. 61 Broadway; George C. Pennell, Vice-President Union Stone Works, No. 30 Brookman street; Moses L. Mendel, men's furnishings, No. 212 Grand street; Edward C. Bodman, grain broker, Produce Exchange, and director Seaboard National Bank; Arthur Lincoln, broker, No. 29 Wall street; William H. Caldwell, real estate, No. 211 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street; John J. Lapham, banker, No. 8 Bridge street; John B. Finn, desks, No. 32 Centre street; John H. Walker, dealer in paper, No. 18 Rensselaer street; Max Ruttenberg, merchant, No. 19 Whitehall street; Leopold Wurmser, banker, No. 6 West Seventy-first street; Louis W. Morrison, real-estate dealer, No. 25 Broad street; Frank Brandner, merchant, Produce Exchange; Samuel S. Stewart, retired, No. 33 West End avenue; and John C. Klatt, real-estate dealer, No. 45 West Thirtieth street.

SAYS CONTRACTOR HAS TWO WIVES

First Mrs. Van Pelt Has Husband Arrested for Bigamy.

That her husband, Frank W. Van Pelt, a wealthy contractor and builder, married a Long Island City widow about a year ago was the charge made by Mrs. Emma Van Pelt, of No. 223 West One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, Manhattan, in the Long Island Police Court today. Van Pelt, who is a fairly rich man of forty-two, had the case postponed until next Monday so he could get counsel. Bail was set at $2,000.

Mrs. Van Pelt alleged that for the past two months she had seen nothing of her husband, and that yesterday she learned he was living with wife No. 2 at Pelham and Archer avenues, the Bronx. He was arrested there.

The second marriage, it is alleged, was performed April 2, 1905, at the Long Island City Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Albert N. Morahan. The woman was Miss Christina Callahan, then living at No. 126 Webster avenue, Long Island City.

Mrs. Van Pelt No. 1 says she was married to the contractor on Jan. 2, 1902, by the Rev. A. B. Mattheus, of the Rev. A. B. Mattheus's Lutheran Church, Hoboken. She says her husband divided his time between the two for ten months and so no suspicion was aroused.
